county's needs, Attorney Ross devised the plan of having a sum set aside from the tax levy each year for the purpose of building a new courthouse. He convinced the supervisors of the soundness of his plan, and it was adopted. A small tax increase was made and the revenue from this source was set aside for a period of five years at the end of which time the supervisors had enough money on hand to build a larger courthoue.

For many years George Ross has associated with him in his legal work two of his sons, Hall C. Ross and Lee T. Ross. Under the firm name of Ross & Ross these attorneys have built up a law practice and a reputation for legal ability equaled by few firms of the state.

Attorney Ross was married soon after opening an office here to Miss Mary Donald of San Mateo. The couple have lived happily for more than fifty years and recently celebrated their golden wedding. They have three sons, Hall C. Ross and Lee T. Ross, attorneys of this city, and Dr. Donald H. Ross, prominent dentist of San Jose. Attorney Ross is also survived by a brother, Dr. J. L. Ross, the pioneer physician of this city.

COMMUNICATION

It has been brought to the attention of officers of the American Legion Post No. 105 of this city that the name of the Legion is being mentioned in the coming election.

This is a final statement made by one of the members who has the Legion at heart.

The American Legion stands for good government, but not to satisfy the desires of some who are desiring election in the coming election in April.

The Legion owes too much to this community to go back on its governement, and will do all in its power to help make this city a city of service. We do not permit politics to enter our door and we forbid any member admittance who tries to do that sort of thing.

We are striving to get back in the hearts of our citizens, and live down the hard knocks we have had in the past and I for one will co-operate with the present officials of Redwood City to make this city, a city of service.

I thank you.

(Signed)

THOMAS VERNALL,
Adjutant

"Smiling Through"

Setting Complete For Showing Tonight

Acclaimed enthusiastically by those who have seen the rehearsals as the biggest hit of the year, "Smilin' Through" by Allan Langdon Martin, the Senior Class play, has received its final polishing up preparatory to its presentation this evening in the Sequoia Union High School auditorium at 8:15. Mrs. Bess Blacomb, assisted by Miss Angelina Burns and Miss Mary Cowden, has directed the play.

The stage setting for "Smilin' Through" adds particular enjoyment by its exquisite charm. In the background is an English stone cottage overgrown with vines. Flower beds dot the foreground, and a flower covered wall and wicket fence are at the sides of the garden. The setting was designed and the flowers have been made by the Art classes. Construction of the setting is in charge of the stage crew.

The element of time in 'Smilin' Through" is of particular interest. The first act takes places in Agust, 1914. In the second act, the curtain rises on the same scene, but fifty years before. The garden is a bower of June flowers. A wedding party is in progress. Many guests crowd the garden—gay young beauties and handsome young men in the gorgeously colorful costumes of the period. The end of the second act brings the spectators back to 1914, and the third act is in 1918, after the close of the war.

The theme of the play is the love of Kenneth Wayne, portrayed by Lorin Denny, and Kathleen Dunganon, played by Teresa Blas. Kenneth is a fine young English country lad, and Kathleen is a sweet, lovable girl, but with the strong will of her Irish ancestors. Her rich brouge is one of the delights of the play.

John Carteret, Kathleen's uncle played by Tom Ambrose, is a splendid fellow, but with a rather hot temper. His pretty squabbles with his life-long friend, Dr. Owen Harding, Arthur Lampkin, are extremely amusing.

They are not all amusing, though, for they touch rather heavily on the matter of Kenneth's love for Kathleen. Long before, John Carteret was about to marry Moonyeen Clare, Bess Leggett. But another man, Jeremiah Wayne Gerald Towne, who was Kenneth's father, loved her desperately, and she received the bullet that was menat for Carteret.

This tragedy has followed Carteret through his life and he cannot bear the though of a Wayne marrying his own niece. The fact that Dr. Harding champions Kenneth causes his friend's estrangement, and so matters go until Kenneth returns from the war. From then on to the end of the play surprising things happen.

This evening, the admission will be 50 cents and 75 cents.

SUPERVISORS MAY RECONSIDER ACT OF GRANTING FRANCHISE

Francis May Change Vote Provided Action on Coastside Highway Is Promised by S. F.

SUPERVISORS BRIDGE ACTION STIRS STORM OF PROTEST IN COUNTY

Action by the county board of supervisors of this county last Monday in granting to interests represented by Attorney Albert Mansfield of this city a franchise for a bridge to connect this county at Candlestick point and Alameda county has resulted in a general storm of protest. The action of the board was taken over the protest of two members of the board, Chairman John W. Poole of this township, and Rosalie M. Brown, representing the Second township. Supervisors Hickey, Francis and Thompson voted in favor of the franchise.

The news of the granting of the franchise was received with indignation, especially in San Mateo and Burlingame, where it is thought that the new project will be a severe blow to the completion of the Little Coyote Point bridge, now under construction; and in San Francisco, where the granting of the franchise is thought to be a blow at the securing by San Francisco of a war department permit for a bridge from Hunters Point to Alameda.

The board of supervisors had previously refused franchises to three bridge promoters, Carey, Thompson and Webb, for a similar bridge.

It was expected that at the meeting of the board next Monday that a concerted demand would be made to have the franchise revoked. It is believed, however, that at that time Supervisor Francis will reverse his vote and favor the annulment of the franchise. A statement to this effect was made by the supervisor at a mass meeting of citizens of the county held at Halfmoon Bay Tuesday evening.

Francis stated that he would be willing to reverse his vote provided that San Francisco did its part in the construction of the coastside road through this county. Francis stated that he would delay that action of the franchise until September 15, by which time it is expected that San Francisco will have made an appropriation for the coastside road.

A resolution introduced by George Dunn, Coastside editor, and given the hearty support of the assembled citizens follows:

RESOLVED, That the sense of this meeting is that every effort should be made to co-operate with San Francisco in the construction of the Ocean Shore highway and that Supervisor Manuel Francis of this district be requested to postpone his vote on the Candlestick franchise until a meeting with the San Francisco supervisors can be arranged to discuss the coast road and if a real agreement can be reached to insure building of our Ocean Shore highway that the bridge franchise be denied.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the limit time for the execution of this agreement be set for September 15, 1928.

DR. C. L. MORGAN,
Chairman

R. GUY SMITH,
Secretary

Supervisor Francis asesnted to the policy outlined in this resolution. It is reported that the supervisors of San Francisco are fully in accord with the coastside road program and that action toward the construction of this important artery between San Francisco and Santa Cruz will be taken.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

Two men under sentence of death were received at San Quentin a few days ago and locked in condemned-row awaiting the call of the hangman. They are Clarence "Buck" Kelly, San Francisco terror bandit, and Edgar LaPierre, convicted of killing an Oakland police inspector. The new arrivals brought the number in condemned-row to six. La Pierre is scheduled to hang April 27; Kelly May 11.

Folsom's six Thanksgiving day murderers who escaped the noose through an unusual jury verdict at Sacramento last week, are to be tried again for their lives. District Attorney Neil R. McAllister announced that the sextet, already convicted of the first degree murder of Guard Ray Singleton, will be prosecuted a second time for the slaying of George "Red" Baker, Folsom trusty who was shot to death in the prison revolt of last November.

Declaring that the State Park Bond Act, if ratified, will gain for California $12,000,000 worth of parks through the expenditure of $6,000,000, Duncan McDuffie, chairman of the California State Parks Council, addressed a meeting of the council in the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, a few days ago. The meeting was held to discuss ways and means of carrying on the campaign for the passage of the bond issue, which will come before the voters of the state at the election in November, 1928.

Construction of a $3,000,000 Federal building on the Civic Center was assured at San Francisco a few days ago, with word from Washington that President Coolidge had signed the new $100,000,000 public buildings appropriation bill. Ten million dollars out of the national appropriation will be spent in California, it was announced. Oakand will get a new $1,000,000 post-office to be erected near the site of the present building. Besides the Federal buildings at San Francisco on the Civic Center, many thousands will be devoted to remodeling the post-office building in Seventh street to provide two extra courtrooms and other improvements.

Reckless and intoxicated California motorists caused 9,159 accidents involving either injury or death, during 1927. This is shown in records of the state division of motor vehicles, as forwarded in reports by police departments and traffic officers throughout the state. The records place the number who died during the year from motor accidents at 1,651, those seriously injured at 4,277, and those receiving minor injuries at 14,091.

Statement of plans of the Western Air Express, Inc., of Los Angeles, to conduct air passenger service between Los Angeles and San Francisco were confirmed last week by Harry Guggenheim, president of the Guggenheim Foundation to Promote Aeronautics. An equipment trust loan has been made to the Western Air Express for the purchase of three fourteen-passenger Fokker planes for use on the Los Angeles-San Francisco route, it was stated.

Earl E. Jensen, state director of institutions, within thirty days will ask Governor C. C. Young to approve a location for temporary quarters to treat California's narcotic addicts. Jensen indicated that it will be at one of the state hospitals. Eventually it is planned to establish a separate institution for treating addicts. As soon as the governor's approval is secured, work will be rushed in providing quarters and equipment and establishing a personnel. "It is planned to employ the latest, most humane and scientific methods of treatment, to furnish supervision after the patients have been discharged from the institution, and to render assistance in securing employment and proper placement," Jensen said.

Employment of California residents, and especially those with families, on highway construction projects, in preference to transients drawn here by the mild winter weather, was recommended by Governor C. C. Young to B. B. Meek, director of the state department of public works last week. The Governor at the same time complimented Meek and other highway officials on their announced program of hastening opening of spring highway work so the unemployment situation may be relieved. Governor Young also has urged the division of highways and the division of architecture to work with the state's free employment agencies when the need for labor arises. The state bureaus, he pointed out, by co-operating with all the other agencies, are in touch with the most desirable labor supply and can fill any needs.

Immediate construction of the causeway over Sutter-Butte by-pass, which will improve Northern California highway connections and facilitate travel conditions between the Northern counties and the San Francisco bay district was ordered last week with the award of a contract by the state department of public works. The causeway, on the highway between Yuba City, Sutter county and Woodland, Yolo county, is to be built by the Morrison Knudson Company of Boise, Idaho, the contract involving $228,134.200.

United States numbered road signs are being erected by the California State Automobile Association on the coast route south, Route 101, and the valley route south, Route 99, under the plan of the motorists' organization to add to its yellow-diamond road-sign system the federal system of route designation by numerals on all main roads. The shield-shape signs, bearing the number designating the route, are so spaced that motorists unfamiliar with the road may follow a number the entire distance. The plan is expected to facilitate motor tourist travel to and wthin California.

Declarer's Play of a No Trump

THE following deal illustrates finessing and creating entry cards:

	♠—10, 7, 3 ♡—A, Q, 10 ◇—6, 5, 4, 3 ♣—7, 6, 4
♠—Q, 9, 6, 4, 2 ♡—K, 7, 4 ◇—9, 8 ♣—10, 5, 2	W N E S	♠—8, 5 ♡—9, 6, 3, 2 ◇—A, J, 10 ♣—K, 9, 8, 3
	♠—A, K, J ♡—J, 8, 5 ◇—K, Q, 7, 2 ♣—A, Q, J

South deals and bids one no trump and all pass. West leads the four of spades. Dummy is placed on the table and declarer looks over the two hands.

He has command of every suit and so feels free to finesse against either adversary. He wants to lead both diamonds and clubs from dummy, and if the first finesses succeed he may want to lead each suit twice from there, in which case he will need four entry cards. He sees that the heart suit can be played so as to put the lead in dummy three times and he must attempt to get a fourth entry card in the diamond suit. The deal is played as follows:

	W	N	E	S
1	S4	S3	S8	SJ
2	H4	H10	H2	H5
3	D8	D3	D10	DQ
4	H7	HQ	H3	H8
5	D9	D4	DJ	DK
6	C2	D5	DA	D7
7	S2	S7	S5	SA
8	HK	HA	H6	HJ
9	C5	C4	C3	CJ
10	C10	D6	H9	D2
11	S6	C6	C8	CQ
12	S9	C7	C9	CA
13	SQ	S10	CK	SK

Declarer makes a small slam.

The fact that declarer hopes to make an entry card in diamonds is the reason for starting that suit first. At trick 6 in leading to draw out the Ace (the only remaining diamond held by the adversaries) declarer is careful to lead the seven and retain the deuce after which dummy's six becomes an entry card.

The clubs and diamonds each require two leads from dummy and so this diamond entry card was absolutely necessary to play the hand correctly. It was used at trick 10.

The Elimination Play

This is a play which may sometimes be used to render unnecessary the risk which attends every finesse. The proper setting for it is a major tenace in declarer's hand and the possibility of eliminating two suits from both of the declarer's hands, after which the lead is thrown to senior, who is compelled to lead up to declarer's major tenace, thus assuring declarer of two tricks in it.

While the play itself is comparatively simple, it is not easy for the average player to recognize a situation where it may be used. Therefore it may be classed with the grand coup and the squeeze play as common only with the experts.

An example would be when declarer is playing a no trump and senior has opened clubs with the Ace and King, and declarer takes the third trick with the Queen. Declarer now wins three rounds of hearts and three of diamonds and the remaining cards are as follows: Senior—spades, K, 10; clubs—10, 5. Dummy has: Spades—J, 9, 5; clubs—9. Junior's cards are small and make no difference. Declarer has: Spades—ace, queen, 7 and 3. The lead is in dummy. Declarer has seven tricks and needs two more for game. If a spade is led from dummy and the finesse taken and wins declarer will just get his game; but if the finesse loses or if he does not take it he can get only one more trick, making eight in all.

Declarer, therefore, leads the club and discards a small spade. Senior wins with his ten of clubs, takes the next trick with the five of clubs and then is compelled to lead either the King or the ten of spades. Thus declarer wins both the last two tricks, securing game.

"Office" Has Various Shades of Meaning

"The office" is a remarkable and generally misunderstood institution. It is doubtful if even those who spend much of their time there know as much about it as they pretend.

To the wife of one who goes to an office, it is a place where her husband sits in an easy chair all day long reading newspapers, chatting with a good-looking stenographer and counting his money or clipping interest coupons.

To his daughter, the office is a necessary evil without which her father would be unable to supply her with new gowns and sport roadsters.

To the boy it is merely a place where people work, and that is the reason he has little use for it.

But to the one who spends many of his waking hours in the office, it may mean many things. To one it is drudgery; to another it is a relief from domestic troubles; to another it is work that becomes play because he delights in it; to another it is a negative condition of things that are neither wholly good nor wholly bad, but quite necessary in order that he may eat regularly; to still another it is a place in which his ambition may sprout its wings. Not so many in the last named class.—Evansville (Ind.) Courier and Journal.

This "sales baby," dedicated to the druggists of America by Sterling Products (Incorporated) is seven years old this month. It has scored six successive triumphs, and Secretary Samuel C. High Taxation Causes Depression

IF you've ever been buried under an avalanche of "monthly installments"—payments on the radio, payments on the automobile, payments on the house, payments on the new baby and payments on the wife's latest spring outfit (know what we mean, now?)—then you'll understand the full significance of this story.

Of course you haven't been in this predicament, but then some of us have.

And that's exactly the affliction many of California's most enterprising communities are suffering from, according to State Controller Ray L Riley.

There are payments to be met on the new civic auditorium, payments on that unequaled city park, installments on the world's most remarkable city street system, payments on the new stadium and payments on the new $1,000,000 home of the three R's, et cetera, et cetera.

And these payments, says Riley, "mortgage the future," jump the tax burden, and halt growth, even though they are made in the name of progress.

Riley is not a foe of public improvement projects. He sometimes brags a bit in public addresses about California's up-to-date, metropolitanized communities.

But the state controller declares that the time has come for California cities, in most cases, to call a halt and take account of stock.

And he makes some startling deductions as to the results of this quite human spending orgy.

"High taxes," states the watchdog of the treasury, "mean high rentals. And high rentals freeze out the small business man.

"This trend is in evidence on every hand. There are business mergers, brought about because no one "small man" can stand the high rents, the high taxes that are heaped on his enterprises. Newspapers merge, banks merge, mercantile establishments merge, even barber shops are merging—all to meet the new burdens placed upon them, meet their increased rentals.

"Big Business" supplants "little business" and hundreds of former employers, who couldn't make a satisfactory merger, become employes—workers.

"And then, following in natural order, comes unemployment. Too many ex-employers of labor have become laborers.

"Next, comes a drop in property values, because thousands of unemployed, or poorly-paid workers must move into cheaper quarters. The number who can pay high rentals is reduced. The number who can afford to own valuable property is reduced. And in the finale, civic improvements in excess, have hurt your city instead of helping it; reduced its wealth instead of increasing it."

That's the cycle, as Riley sees it.

Riley, incidentally, is a member of the State Tax Commission and feels that one of our greatest tax problems is not how to get new revenues, but how not to get them. Or better still, how not to need them.

California communities, he concludes, must learn as many newly-married couples ultimately do, that it's better to go "cash and carry" style for awhile than to dodge the bill collectors.

Big Vote Seen In Years Election

"Wet" and "Dry" Issues Promise to Create Much Interest

By CLEM WHITAKER

SACRAMENTO, March 8 — A tremendous increase in the strength of California's voting army, indicative of unusual interest in the presidential race, together with a big population gain during the last two years, was forecast today by Charles J. Hagerty, state election statistician, on the basis of early registration returns.

The big political marathon, with the White Houes at the finish line, will draw a registration for the general election in California of approximbately 2,200,00 or a jump of nearly 300,000 over the total two years ago, Hagerty predicted.

New cohorts for this, the biggest voting army ever mobilized in the West, will come from every section of the state, according to the state's political moteorologists, with each county scheduled for a jump of approximately 16 per cent in registration over that of two years back.

One of the big factors contributing to the great turnout of voters, in the opinion of the experts, is the hot "wet" and "dry" battle forming in the wake of Governor Al Smith's barrage. Both the modificationists and the bone dry element are apparently determined to wage a fight to the finish to settle the moot question as to whether California is for or against the Volstead Act.

On the basis of the last referendum on the Wright Act, California's "Little Volstead Act," there are 25 "wet" counties and 33 "dry," but this vote the anti-prohibition contingent refuses to accept as a true index of state sentiment. The issue at that time, they claim, wat not the law, but the enfrocement of law.

Still another contributing cause to the increased strength of the electoral fraternity, say the politicians, is found in the candidacy of Herbert Hoover—a "favorite" son" candidate who is touted in all circles as a good bet.

In California, the Al Smith "wet" crusaders will face approximately a three-to-one handicap, the 1926 registration showing 1,298,062 Republicans against 410,290 Democratic voters. At the final run-off in November, however, electors will not be bound by their registration, the law permitting a Republican to go Democratic, or visa versa, if he so desires, and the Bourbon forces are banking on the liquor issue overshadowing partisan politics.

The county-by-county registration at the last election, which must be increased some 15 or 16 per cent to estimate the registration now underway, shows the voting strength as follows:

Normally "Wet" Counties

Alameda, 200,081; Amador, 3,057; Calaveras, 3.290; Contra Costa, 25,685; Del Norte, 1,852; El Dorado, 5,249; Humboldt, 18,653; Inyo, 3,363; Marin, 13,728; Mariposa, 2,359; Mendocino, 10,578; Mono, 542; Napa, 9.771; Plumas, 3,170; Sacramento, 48,371; San Francisco, 222,799; San Mateo, 24,176; Shasta, 6,607; Sierra, 1,345; Siskiyou, 10,095; Solano, 15,422; Sonoma, 25.978; Trinity, 1,478; Tuolumne, 5,242; Yuba, 5,262.

NEW YORK - LONDON PHONE RATES $30 CHEAPER

Telephone Rates To Be Lowered To Continental Points

Effective March 4, a reduction of $30 in the rate between New York and London for a three minute transatlantic call is announced by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in cooperation with the British General Postoffice. The charge for each additional minute will be reduced $10 and the report charge $5.

The new schedule between Pacific Coast points and London will thus be $57 for three minutes and $19 for each succeeding minute. The three minute rate from Pacific Coast points to Belgian cities will be $60, to Dutch cities $60.75, to Swedish cities $63.75 and to German cities $64.50.

The service period for transatlantic telephone service will be extended two hours on the same date, making the service available from 4:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. Pacific Standard time. The extension of service hours indicates the increasing stability of the circuit as well as the growing demand.

During the last two months physical extensions of the service have been completed to important cities in Belgium, Holland, Sweden and Germany and further extensions to other continental points of importance are contemplated. As a result American visitors to Great Britain and the continent of Europe during 1928 will find a considerable number of cities from which they may enjoy direct voice communication with their homes or places of business. A present total of well over two and one half million overseas telephones have been brought within reach of the more than eighteen million instruments of American subscribers.

The scope of the present transoceanic telephone service has been widened until it now includes all points in the United States, in Cuba and in England, Scotland and Wales. Connection also may be established to four continental capitals, Brussels, The Hague, Berlin and Stockholm, as well as to important continental ports and financial centers such as Antwerp, Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Hamburg, Frankfort-on Main and Gothenburg.

The Spirit of Service

IN JULY, 1926, lightning struck the Navy Arsenal at Denmark Lake, New Jersey. The explosion demolished the $80,000,000 plant, rocked the countryside, left thousands homeless and many dead.

High upon the roster of those who responded to the call of duty were the telephone workers. Operators in the danger zone stayed at their posts. Others, on their own initiative, hurried back to help. Linemen and repairmen braved exploding shells to restore the service. No telephone worker left the affected area.

Through the twenty-four hours of the day as well as in every emergency it is the spirit of service that causes Bell System employees to set aside all thought of personal comfort and safety and, voluntarily, risk their lives to "Get the message through."

Bank of Italy workers have made a pledge to the founder of their institution—A. P. Giannini—to increase the deposits of the bank to ONE BILLION DOLLARS. This goal is to be reached by May 6, 1930, Mr. Giannini's sixtieth birthday. Through the enthusiastic cooperation of its officers, advisory board members, 25,000 stockholders, 1,290,000 depositors and its 4,600 employees—the Bank of Italy will be a billion-dollar institution by 1930. California deserves to have a billion-dollar bank. Teamwork will produce one within the next two years!

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Elliott and family have been spending several weeks at Palm Springs in southern California.

This item recalls one of the romantic episodes in California real estate history within the recollection of your correspondent. Palm Springs a little oasis upon the desert was first put upon the market during the famous boom of 1887 at which time everything in Southern California that would support a surveyor's stake was subdivided and sold. Auction sales with free barbecue feasts, brass bands, fortune tellers and other carnival attractions disposed of all this property at what was then considered fancy prices.

When the boom bubble burst and the coyote, ground squirrel and rattler became the only inhabitants for several decades. Most of the buyers failed to complete their payments or to keep up their taxes upon such apparently worthless property and titles became involved.

But during the past few years a great change has come to Palm Springs. A million dollar tourist hotel has been built, business blocks have arisen and those who cleared title to their property are receiving as much per front foot as was ever paid per acre, while lawyers are netting tidy sums in clearing up the involved titles.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Jackling, who have been making a tour of the world, going first to China and Japan and working always westward, are in Paris and are expected home in May.

Mr. Huddart and his sister, Miss Huddart, who have been in the past six months in Europe, are expected home early in May.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Zane spent last week-end at their home in Woodside.

Who wouldn't be a fish? Mortimer Fleishhacker is spending many thousands of dollars to provide the proper care and comfort and fishing facilities for the recreation hours of his private goldfish. A fishpond two hundred feet in length and forty feet wide is being constructed. This will be lined with concrete in which will be set native rocks and boulders arranged in the form and order most approved by modern gold fish for home purposes. This will be connected by a flight of stone steps to the lily pond thus completing the 'pospect' from the window of his home.

An entertainment featuring views of the 'fotograft album' will be offered to the community by the Parent-Teacher Association on Saturday evening. Here is an opportunity for some of the older folks to see themselves as others knew them' forty years ago. All are invited.

The Parent-Teacher Association will give one of its delightful card parties on March 16th. Decorations, prizes and special stunts will honor St. Patrick's Day.

Sequoia Basket Team To Star in P. A. L.

Although they lost their first and won their second games, the Sequoia Unlimited Baseball team will probably show much strength in the P. A. L. race this year.

With Jones on first, Lutje at second, R. Clancy, short and Shine at third, Coach F. J. Griffin has a fairly experienced and fast infield. Then to the outer gardens where a spectator would find Ike Britschgi, Arnie Jansing and Fred Worrel, George Sepulvedor or Orval Sutton. In the box, Botto, last year's star, will generally start with Sutton, who played good ball for San Mateo, as a relief. On the receiving end, Partee, Lintner or Walther will probably fill the job left open by Paul Bartelmei who graduated. The team as a whole is fairly strong at the plate but should improve so at least they should cause other teams some trouble.

The 130's have on their roster, Hatley, DeLacy, Du Pont, Lawler, Waldsmith, Haruff, Keyser, Drivon, Clark and several others. Coach Don Bogie has had a hard time picking the right combination, however, but once he does the 30's should be fairly strong. This teaf is only a shadow of last year's second place team, but a year's experience should find a championship team.

The 110's including George Shine, Dillard, Peache, Perry, Israel and several others of last year's team, have been practicing faithfully, and are trying hard to become future sequoia stars.

New Phone Practice Now In Effect Here

A long distance telephone known as "combined line and recording" is now in effect between this city and various other exchanges in The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company system, it was stated today by the local manager for the company.

This method provides for the completion of a call by the long distance operator receiving the number. Under this system it is unnecessary for the calling customer to hang up the telephone receiver and wait for the operator to call him back.

This new telephone operating practice has proved very satisfactory in reducing the time necessary for completing long distance calls, inasmuch as the calling customer receives a report on the call before hanging up the receiver.

In addition to the increased speed of the new method, the telephone customer placing a call has the satisfaction of hearing the operator repeat the number to the operator in a distant exchange. The telephone company's long distance operating innovation is in effect from this city to a number of exchanges in California, and is but one of hte methods of bettering the service regularly adopted for the benefit and convenience of customers.

Paintings to be Shown At Local Schools

An exhibit of more than 150 fine art prints of the great masters will be on display at the Sequoia Union High School and the new McKnley School next week. This collection, containing reproductions of the world's great master painters, has been loaned to the schoos for the purpose of raising a fund with which to purchase pictures for the two school buildings, according to Mrs. Gladys Bruce, art instructor at the high school, who is chairman of a committee for the exhibition of the pictures.

This collection consists of masterpieces representing the French, Italian, Flemish, English, Dutch, Spanish, German and American schools of art. Famous portraits, landscapes, marines and pastoral scenes in the color of the original canvasses will be on display. The reproductions are said to be of the finest type produced, showing the color as well as the brush strokes of the original canvasses.

The pictures will be on display in the girl's club-room of the high school, the afternoons of March 12, 13 and 14 and at the new McKinley School at the corner of Elwood and James on March 15 and 16. Admission will be 25c for adults and 10c for children. the proceeds being used to purchase some of the pictures for the grammar school boildings and for the high school.

San Mateo High School In New Quandry

Can a man hold positions on two education boards? That is the question which must be settled before the position of Sam Merk on the board of trustees of the San Mateo high school district becomees secure. Merk was appointed recently to succeed Frank Thrall, who resigned his position on the board.

Merk already holds, however, a position on the state board of education, and whether or not this would interfere with his accepting the position on the San Mateo board is a question which has been propounded to William John Cooper, state superintendent of schools to answer. If Cooper's ruling is adverse to holding both positions, it is likely that Merk will resign from the state board and accept the position on the San Mateo board. Both positions are honorary and without remuneration.

Farewell Forever

(Contributed

A. J. Fromm is wrecking an old building to the rear of his lot on Broadway on which he is about to erect a one-story structure. It is an old land mark erected in the early seventies on Washington street afterwards removed back on the property and served as a store house. In the old days and before Volstead made his appearance in the land, the building was used as a saloon and for a time the proprietor was Peter Hansen, who followed the mast for years before piloting schooners over the bar to the thirsty wayfarer. A conspicuous sign on the outside of the building that attracted attention was "One Hundred Men Wanted to Empty Schooners.'

It goes without saying that there were many applicants for the position. The famous sign may still be seen on the outside of the building, although the lettering is hardly discernible. Those of a generation ago will recall the old resort, its foaming mugs of beer just from the barrel and the quaint old barkeeper with his white apron and stubby cigar protruding from his lips and his good line of chatter. If those old walls could talk what stories they could tell of the happy gatherings of splendid souls there in days of long ago. The care free days of that period as well the saloons have gone now the building is no more. It will exist in memory only but while its existence is ended the melody of the enjoyable times had there will linger on.

Political Kettle Begins To Simmer

Interesting Possibilities In State Campaigns

By ESTO BROUGHTON

SACRAMENTO, March 8 — There promises to be no dearth of gubernatorial timber in California if Governor Young "does not choose to run in 1930."

While the voters' interest is centered on the main presidential tent this year ,the state's politicians are preparing the side show for the next state administration act.

So far as the Republican circus, politically speaking, is concerned, it is all under one management at present, Herbert Hoover, California's entry in the Kansas City presidential popularity contest being already linked up with the state administration from Governor Young on down. And Lieutenant-Governor Buron Fitts ,representing the conservative wing of the State Republican Party tentively selected as Hoover's campaign manager. In the smaller Democratic show-tent there is a display of more varied talent in the three rival rings starring "Al" Smith, "Jimmy" Reed and William G. McAdoo.

But, oh, many more are painting up now in the gubernatorial side-show, preparatory for the big state parade.

First, there is the administration band wagon. The leading candidate, drumming up a new crowd at the head of this column is Alexander R. Heron, who has winged a swift flight from the unknown recesses of the school department to an acknowledged leadership in governmental financial affairs.

Another much discussed candidate for the governor's mantle is Will C. Wood, appointed superintendent of banks by Governor Young. If Young should choose to lay down the governmental reins Wood would be one of the strongest contenders for the place, according to some of the political wiseacres.

From the Governor's immediate administration family, Bert B. Meek head of the newly created department of public works is frequently mentioned as a possible successor relying on the biblical prophecy that the "meek shall inherit the earth."

Charles Neumiller of Stockton, chairman of the prison board and head of the State Republican organization, is another administration aspirant for gubernatorial honors it is rumored; while Fred G. Stevenot, director of the Department of Natural Resources, is also mentioned as a comer in the race. From the southland Congressman Phil Swing appears, anxious to trade his national capitol job for the executive one which would keep aspirants, it seems likely that Govenor Young would have to "choose to run" to keep untiy in the official family.

Other independent candidates reported ready to hurl their hats into the ring are Lieutenant-Governor Buron Fitts, who would start with the backing of the Legion; and State Controller Ray L. Riley, a likely tax reduction candidate.

Then there is every indication that former Governor Friend W. Richardson will attempt a return engagement in the gubernatorial chair.

Child Labor Barred From Hazardous Work

(By Capitol News Bureau)

SACRAMENTO, March 8 — California industry must be rendered safe for child labor, or industry must get along without child labor, Will J. French, state director of Industrial Relations, declared today.

As a result of the maiming or killing of 402 youngsters under 16 years of age, French promulgated an order effective May 8th, excluding children from work near moving machinery or on construction work. The order also forbids their emloyment in delivering packages or newspapers from motor vehicles.

Y. W. C. A. Making Convention Plans

(By Capitol News Bureau)

SACRAMENTO, March 8 — Plans are being launched today by the local Young Women's Christian Association committee, headed by Mrs. C. C. Young, wife of the governor, for the entertainment of the National Convention of that organization in Sacramento from April 14 to 20.

Two thousand delegates, representing all the states of the Union and many foreign countries, are expected. Among the many prominent women to attend are Mrs. John M. Hanna of Houston, Texas, the national president, and Miss Maude Royden of London, famous preacher of England.

Cost Proves Fatal to State Game Lake

(By Capitol News Bureau)

SACRAMENTO, March 8 — Ducks will have to struggle along without the proposed 80-square mile lake which the state proposed to establish as their particular paradise in Glenn and Colusa counties, Governor Young announced as a result of the adverse report on the project submitted by A. R. Heron, director of finance.

Cost of retiring irrigation district obligations against the land would play "ducks and drakes" with state finances, the Governor intimated in saying that another location for California's game preserve will be found.

Governor Young Against Prize Fight Laws

(By Capitol News Bureau)

SACRAMENTO, March 8 — Governor C. C. Young, because of his former opposition to the enactment of prize fight laws in California, is expected to line up this fall with the forces initiating on the ballot a repeal of the present "four-round boxing act."

Young made the statement at the time the recent Hudkins,Dundee fight fiasco was under investigation, that he had always personally opposed the prize fight amendment, but that while it was the law he would stand for its clean and honest administration.

Record Set for Business Ventures

(By Capitol News Bureau)

SACRAMENTO, March 8 — "Big business" is on the "up and up" in California, with the number of corporate enterprises increasing at the greatest rate in state history, according to Secratary of State Frank C. Jordn.

Despite the fact that it was a short month, February was marked by the organization of 476 new corporations in California, Jordan said, a record only twice exceeded since his office was established. The filing fees totaled $32,288.21.

Mills Field Selected as Best Port

Plane Passenger Service Inaugurated To Seattle

Generally recognized as "The Model Municipal Airport of America," Mills Field has been selected, after an exhaustive survey of San Francisco region airports as the terminus for the new passenger air line opened March 5 between San Francisco and Seattle by the West Coast Air Transport Company.

February was the banner month in the history of San Francisco's Municipal Airport, according to figures just released by Supervisor Milo F Kent, chairman of the city's airport committee.

There were 1156 flights and landings at Mills Field during February, carrying 1704 passengers to and from all parts of the United States without a single mishap, as against 918 flights and landings and 1162 passengers for January, which was the peak month since the airport opened for business last May.

The total business acquired by Mills Feld in the nine and one-half months of its operation shows 4969 flights and landings and 7,426 passengers. Hundreds of tons of mail and merchandise also have been handled in the Mills Field service.

With commercial aviation demands upon Mills Field mounting steadily the management is increasing its hangar space and equipment and there is every assurance according to Supervisor Milo F. ent, that the city's airport will soon be operated on a self sustaining basis. Many new flying schools and airplane agencies have leased space at Mills Field recently and new bids for space are coming in regularly.

Smith Club Formed In San Mateo

At a very enthusiatic meeting of Democrats of San Mateo county held at San Mateo last Saturday an organiztion was formed to be known as the Alfred E. Smith for President Association. Judge McGrath of San Mateo and Jos. P. Quinlan of South City were elected president and secretary, respectively.

Various committees have been appointed to conduct an intensive campaign throughout the county in behalf of Gov. Al Smith. Membership cards are being rapidly signed by voters, pledging their earnest support in behalf of Smith's candidacy. The recommendation of Mrs. Casserly of Hillsborough as delegate to the Democratic National Convention at Houston, Texas, was heartily endorsed, and the name of Judge McGrath was strongly recommended as an alternate delegate to the convention also.

Estes still is protesting that his horse is no vehicle, but the only transportation means exempted by Chico Solomon are baby buggies.

Convict Road Work Saving to State

(By Capitol News Bureau)

SACRAMENTO, March 8 — Over $200,000 a year is saved to the taxpayers of the state by the employment of convicts in highway labor camps, not to mention the saving in human values, according to an announcement made today by Bert B. Meek, director of public works.

The convicts employed in the road camps defray all their own expenses relieving the state of caring for them in the prisons, Meek pointed out. An average of 850 men are thus employed.

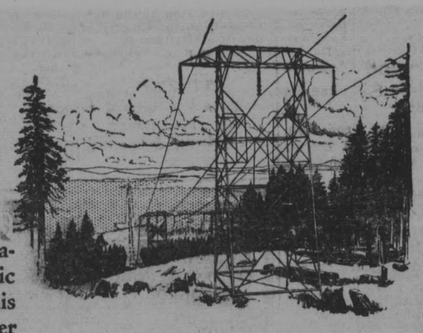
Electric Rate Reduction

For Lighting NOW in Effect
New Domestic Rates in Effect April 1, 1928



$1,750,000.00 Saving

Through the application of the new electric rates, customers of this Company will save over $1,750,000.00 a year based on present use of electricity.

Average 10% Reduction

As for example in the metropolitan bay area, a customer who formerly paid $2.40 a month will now pay $2.15, or a saving of $3.00 a year, or more than one month's bill.

Lighting Cheaper

The new lighting schedules go into effect automatically with the top or maximum rate greatly reduced.

Upon application from the domestic consumer qualifying, there is offered a new rate for combined use of light and heat or power.

Domestic Rate

Where domestic consumers have lighting service and in addition use electric appliances totaling 1000 watts or more capacity this new rate applies. In the bay area a domestic consumer formerly paying $3.30 will now pay $2.60 a month, a saving of $8.40 a year, or a reduction greater than two and a half months' bill under the former lighting rate —all territory will be reduced in similar proportion.

Old Minimum Charges Abolished

In place of the former 90c, $1.00 or $1.25 minimum charges there will now be a small service charge of 40c, 50c or 70c — in accordance with the territory served.

Heating and Cooking Rates as Low as 1½ Cents Per Kilowatt Hour

The new schedules provide attractive lower rates for this class of service and are designed to encourage a greater use of electricity. These rates are among the lowest obtainable anywhere.

Make Electricity Your Household Servant

Let it brighten the gloomy corners—do the cooking—ironing—washing. Let it sweep the floors—operate the electric fan—drive away the chills. It will percolate the coffee, make the toast, keep your food cool and wholesome. It will aid you in many ways through the use of the modern electric labor saving devices, obtainable through the local electrical dealers or our offices.

Our representative will be pleased to explain how a greater use can be made of your electric service through the application of these new rates.

Electricity is cheaper — you can use more of it

Report Given on Irrigated Acreage In 29 Counties

Water Districts Bring Prosperity to Farmers

By ESTO BROUGHTON
Staff Correspondent

SACRAMENTO, March 8 — The first far flung battle line in winning the fight against desert aridity, records show, was set up by California irrigation districts, which today are intrenched from the Granada district within 20 miles of the Oregon line to Imperial on the Mexican border.

These districts now include a total of nearly three and a half million acres in the 87 active districts, besides a half million acres in the 25 inactive districts, according to a report just issued by Walter D. Wagner, secretary of their state association.

Over forty years ago the first groups of farmers organized and bonded their acreage to "bring water on the land" and now the value of real property in these "going" districts is conservatively estimated at $943,873,086 by Wagner. The total assessed value of the land alone in these activ districts is $262,224,083, most of the increased valuation being due to the increased productivity through irrigation.

As an indication of "what price water" these rural communities have paid, their total assessments from their organization of irrigation projects up to 1926 have totaled $61,248,802. And as a further proof of the prosperity water has brought to the land, all but 2.71 per cent of these assessments have been paid, Wagner states.

A new source of defraying the highcost of water has been devised by some of the districts. Wagner points out. It is leting Mr. Gravity do it, in the form of hydro-electric power, which has been a source of over a million gross revenue to the Merced, Modesto and Turlock irrigation districts. The sale of power has brought in a gross return of $1,071,964.78 per year to these three projects. From being one of the biggest and best customers of the power companies, the irrigation districts are threatening to become their real competitiors, it appears.

The annual power bill paid by 36 districts totaled $737,180.80 in 1926, the Lindsay-Strathmore district being the largest consumer, paying $74,653.23 the association secretary reports, while Banta-Carbona came next with $66,388.37.

Besides the districts generating their own power, three other districts, including Nevada, rent water for power purposes and thus roll up a neat return of $410,000 per year.

The financial security and success of irrigation districts is evidenced according to Wagner by the fact that although many of them were conceived in hysteria as promotion schemes, only $220,600 worth of irrigation bonds have ever been defaulted, or less than 1-4 of 1 per cent of the total.

The annual interest bill paid by irrigation districts upon their borrowed capital reaches over $6,000,000.

The bonds of forty of the districts have been put upon a firm financial basis by State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson accepting them as security for the deposit of state funds.

Most of the irrigable lands within the districts are already under cultivation except in the new Madera and Nevada districts, comprising 370,000 acres, Wagner reports. Imperial County leads, closely followed by Fresno, in the number of irrigated acres within her boundaries.

The acreage embraced in the 29 counties in which districts have been formed is distributed as follows:

Alameda	4,142
Butte	40,750
Colusa	107,360
Contra Costa	30,081

PIONEERING ADVENTURES OF CHILDREN

By ALICE G. BRYANT, M. D.
Boston, Mass.
Member Gorgas Memorial

The pioneering adventures of children are full of achievements. They have no competition when it comes to acquiring foreign bodies in the nose, ear, air passages, and food passages. Physicians treating diseases of the ear and throat have recovered many objects from these tracts, such as beads, cherry-stones, collar buttons, pennies, buttons, hooks and eyes, pins and safety pins, tacks, glass, paper-clips, peas and beans. Occosionally an examination of the nose may find a foreign body, no definite symptoms indicating its presence. The child may be too young to note; he may have forgotten the incident; or the fear of parental punishment or the doctor may silence him.

The nose is the most favored place for these objects. They can be easily removed, provided home treatments have not injured the membranes and caused a swelling. A one-sided nasal secretion might mean a foreign body.

The ear is a less favored region for foreign bodies. Home treatment might wedge them in the canal or push them near the drum. Both might be injured and removal is difficult. Beans and peas swell in a secreting and syringed ear.

When objects are in the air and food passages, avoid home treatments, as finger manipulations and emetics. Injuries follow. The objects seek lower levels. Call the doctor, for life-saving moments in these conditions are precious.

The X-ray and its photograph locate foreign bodies. Cylindrical tubes carrying electric lights descend into the hidden and darkened food and air passages. The object is sighted and through these tubes an instrument descends to recover it. An open safety-pin might descend with point end up. It can be closed and recovered. Older removal methods might have punctured or torn the tissues or required an operation. Imagine the percentage of injury in the early days! "In the case of bodies in the bronchi left to themselves the mortality used to be fifty-eight per cent." Chevalier Jackson states that the percentage or recoveries in these patients has been raised to ninety-eight per cent. These figures are convincing. There is today no burrowing like a mole in the dark.

The careless distribution in the home of small objects that might be inserted into the nose, ear, air and throat passages by children from the cradle stage to the creeping toddling, and walking age is a misfortune in more ways than one Save the helpless little people from suffering by being careful not to leave small objects where us have insight and understand-they can be easily reached. Let ing for these problems.

"Oh, you monster—the poor dear trusting heart," she muttered, all in the same breath.

* * * * * * *

Auntalmiry, flushed and radiant with excitement, was the first to arrive for the party. She was joyously pleased at the unusual tenderness of Alice Andover's greeting, and took her all about the room to point out to her, with shy pride, how cleverly she had managed things, explaining all the little economies she had used, the ruses to which she had resorted, in her desire to make least money go farthest. Alice was sympathetic, solicitous, warmly approving, but kept always one sharp and terrified eye upon Gay, both of them in a panic of fear lest the creature upstairs regain his sober senses and spoil the party for which Auntalmiry had worked so hard.

At Gay's direction, Auntalmiry took up her position by the window, with Alice Andover and Gay on either side, and pressed the electric button which set the solitary pine a-sparkle with colored lights from top to bottom, flashing a brilliant holiday greeting all over that end of the island.

"It is the last invitation," she cried, and her thin little voice quivered with excitement. "Come to my party, come to my Christmas party! Everybody can see it. It will guide them up the hill. How the children will laugh! It is very nice, Gay."

The island trooped to the party in a body, a long stream pouring up the hill through the snow, so that all in a moment it seemed the Lone Pine was a-surge and a-throb with it. There was much laughter, much shrill squealing, the piercing staccato of children's voices, the high nervous laughter of young girls, and deeper older voices, calling loud and cheery greeting.

"If this babel doesn't wake him up, he might as well be dead," whispered Alice Andover.

"I'll go and have a look," said Gay. "It is enough to bring the trees to life."

Gay listened outside the bedroom door a moment, hoping to hear the muffled heavy breathing that presaged the sleep of their unwelcome guest. But with the din from below she could hear nothing, so she opened the door quickly and stepped in. The room was wrapped in silence, utter and heavy, and in the darkness she could not distinguish the shadow by the window-seat that was Buddy Bridges. She pressed the button that flooded the room with light and showed in a flash its emptiness. The rugs lay in a rumpled heap upon the floor, but Buddy Bridges was not there.

The window was open. Gay ran over and looked out, but in the shadow of rocks and trees by the house she could distinguish nothing. Her eyes swam giddily.

"Such—a Christmas," she stammered. Already with that vividly creative mind of hers she could see him lying on the rocks, a bleeding mangled shape, Auntalmiry's son. Suddenly she was afraid to be alone, and ran downstairs. Alice Andover awaited her coming at the foot of the steps.

She read fear in Gay's eyes.

"What now, good heavens, what now?"

"He is gone. He is not there."

"Gone! Gone where? Gone how?"

"Come! Let's look." In the joyous confusion that reigned about the Christmas tree, with Santa Claus noisily distributing the pretty gifts, with the burble of his bells, the laughing voices, the crackle of tissue paper, and the treble of children's voices over all, they went out unnoticed. And with an electric flashlight, looked beneath the window for the crushed and bleeding—

Yes, he had certainly dropped down into the bank of snow. There were many signs of tramping, footprints, but the white snow bore no stains of red. And Buddy was not there. The outraged divinity whose patience still is infinite had guarded Auntalmiry's boy that night.

So they went back, with what nonchalance they could muster, and joined the merriment within. But Gay was sick at heart. Everybody had come to the party, the Captain was there, the two ministers were there, even Buddy Bridges had come home. But Rand came not.

"Well, well," boomed Santa Claus, "well, well! Here's another present for little old Auntalmiry! Aunt almiry!"

Santa Claus, powerful young giant that he was, caught her up bodily into his arms, so that she was quite crushed in the shaggy fur of his big coat.

"Auntalmiry, Auntalmiry!" chorused the children gaily.

And then, on the wave of that loving joyous call, the door opened, and he stood there, soft hat crushed low on his forehead over the big dark eyes, collar turned up about his chin—tall, thin, and weak, very pale, Buddy Bridges.

Santa Claus, with little Auntalmiry still in his arms, turned as the others did, to look at this one who came so unceremoniously into the party, his face alone unsmiling, set and grim.

He crossed without a word into the center of the room, walked swaggeringly, perhaps to hide the fact that he could not stand erect without swaying weakly, and stood before Santa Claus, with Auntalmiry in his arms. It was she who moved first, moved vaguely, slipping to the floor, and then, not seeming to walk, seeming to float rather, she was beside him, her eyes riveted to his eyes, haggard and darklined, and her fingers crept softly up his coat toward his face, touching the curve of his chin uncertainly, inquiringly, as though it were by feeling she would be convinced.

"Almiry, come away," broke in Alice Andover harshly, but it was pity that hardened her voice. "Come away. He's drunk."

"It's Buddy," Auntalmiry said faintly. "It's Buddy. It is Buddy."

"Come away, I tell you; he's drunk."

Then suddenly Buddy Bridges laughed. "Drunk," he shouted weakly but with derision in his voice. "Oh, it's you, Alice Andover, up to your old tricks! Drunk! So that's what you thought. Well, I thought you were crazy, the pair of you, stuffing me up with cognac, locking me in—I'm not drunk, mom, I'm sick. They couldn't tell the difference."

Every eye in the bright, disordered, crowded room was intent upon Buddy Bridges, who held his mother in his arms, and laughed with her, wept with her, and talked to her in a fond weak voice. "Sick as a dog. In the hospital—weeks. Weak as the dickens. I was in the hospital when they told me you were here. I got out of bed—knocked two internes down—sick as I was. Came on here—clear from California, mom. Twice I fainted away, and when I came to, they had me off the train and in hospital again. But as soon as I got my wind, I beat it again. Came on. Drunk! Isn't that like her, mom? I'd know in a minute it was Alice Andover! You haven't changed much, mom—a little." How his eyes caressed her! "Twenty-five years, mom. Not a word from you in twenty-five years. I wouldn't have believed it, mom. It was—not—just—like you. Was it because they sent me to the pen, mom?"

"The—the pen, Buddy? The pen?"

"Oh, hush, you fool," begged Alice Andover.

"In Jersey. Twenty-five years—"

"Buddy, you don't mean the penitentiary—Buddy—"

"Mom, didn't you know it? Didn't you ever know it?"

"Buddy—"

"Mom, you've just forgot. You knew it. You must have known it. It was in the papers— Is—is she all right?" he asked falteringly of all the room. "You must have known it."

Alice Andover was tall and fine in her dignity. "Yes, Buddy Bridges, we knew it. We all knew it. But nobody told her. Almiry never knew to this day—"

"Nobody told her—"

Alice Andover's dignity was simply killing. "On our island, Mr. Bridges," she said greatly, "we tell one another no news unless it's good news. There was nobody here low-down enough to tell Auntalmiry that her son had gone to jail."

"Buddy—" Auntalmiry's voice was pleading.

"Aw, mom, it wasn't much. A roughhouse, a row over a game. You know I was always quick in a scrap. It wasn't much. But a man was hurt. So they sent me up for it. But, mom, since then, everything fine and dandy. No nonsense since. Got a fine woman, got three nice kids, made a lot of money— Great, mom." And then, suddenly, mercurial man as he had been a mercurial boy, he glowered, glowered with sudden anger around the room. "See here," he demanded sharply, "who sent me that paper—marked Portland paper—that told me mom was dead? Twenty-five years ago! One of you sent me a paper—that lied."

The silence throbbed. Everybody looked at Alice Andover. She was the administrator, and this was a terrible charge he brought.

Alice Andover did not flinch. She turned directly on the Captain.

"John Christian Wallace, do you mean to tell me that you dared to take it upon yourself—without consulting me—the natural administrator—"

The Captain removed his pipe and ambled amiably into the arena, a gentle, dignified little old figure. He put an affectionate hand on Buddy's arm. His voice was wavering with age and with excitement, but he was not daunted.

"Buddy, I says to myself, 'Jailbird or no jailbird, he's Auntalmiry's son. He's got a right to know she's gone.' We said plenty of hard things against you, times enough, but nobody ever said that Buddy Bridges didn't love his mom. 'No,' says I, 'he's got a right to know it.' So I marked the paper, and sent it right off to you, Buddy, in jail or what-not, for I don't hold to them as says—"

"But, Gramp," he interrupted, for everybody called the Captain Gramp, "Gramp, she was not dead! She was not dead!"

"No, but we thought she was. It said in the paper she was. We didn't know till next day, or day after, that she pulled through after all. 'No,' says I, 'he's her son,' and as soon as I read in the paper she was dead, I marked it and mailed it, and—"

"But, Gramp, my God, when you found out—that she wasn't dead—that she had pulled through— Why, in God's name, didn't you let me know?"

The Captain was crestfallen, taken aback. But he rallied, slowly. "Whwhat say?" he asked feebly, hand to his ear.

"Why didn't you send me word—let me know—when you found out that it was a mistake, and she had not died? I never knew. When I got out I headed west and never came back. Never wanted to come back if mom was gone. Why didn't you let me know?"

"God bless my soul," ejaculated the Captain feebly. "Didn't you know she wasn't dead? Just think of that now. His own mother not dead, and he didn't even know it. Dear, dear. Buddy, I never thought of it from that day to this. I supposed of course a boy would know it if his own mother wasn't dead."

When the last tired but happy voice had sent its final "Merry Christmas" ringing back across the snow, when Auntalmiry, with Buddy's weak arm about her, had disappeared beyond the arc of light that underlined the solitary pine, Gay turned back into the bright disordered rooms and closed the door slowly. She was very sad. The brightness of the room in all its gay confusion depressed her, and she stood, a tired dejected figure in the midst of it, and pressed her burning face into her cold clasped hands. Tears came to her eyes. A sob swelled in her throat. She wept noiselessly. What was the success of all the noisy merry party to her, when Rand had not come, and she knew not where he was?

In her heart she knew that Rand had not remained away of his own volition, that something had kept him against his will. He had pledged her to solemn secrecy in regard to his movements, but his prolonged absence without word or reassurance terrified her greatly. She sank down into the window-seat and looked out. The tall, gayly lighted pine was hateful, garish to her saddened eyes. Impatiently she pressed the button, and the hillslope was plunged into darkness.

"It—it's that d—d old clubhouse," she said bitterly. "I have a big notion to—to burn it down."

With the passionate words came sudden determination. She could not bear this anxiety, she must know the worst, however bad it be. She would slip into the forest, and reconnoiter. Rand had sternly ordered her to keep entirely out of the woods and away from the Little club, but Gay, in an emergency like this, and goaded by her fears for him, was not one to be balked by obedience. If she found the gang in the Little club, she would call the police, immediately, have the place raided, and demand Rand of them. In her thoughts, vividly, she saw the slim worn face, the shapely strong hands of the one who had come to her on the waves in the Little cove. Almost she saw Rand's face, like that, with the merry eyes closed, the mocking lips set hard, swept by salt water.

"Oh, no," she cried faintly. Then she sprang to her feet, and pounded hotly up the stairs. She was feverish with excitement now, her face flaming, her lips parched, her eyes tingling hot. But her slender, strong hands were like ice.

"If they catch me, I do not care," she told herself hotly. "I've got to find him." She could not bear that recurring, evanescent vision of Rand's face on the winter sea.

The cold fingers tore her party dress from her, pulled on heavy silk and woolen undergarments, her thickest woolen stockings, stout boots. She donned her warmest blouse beneath the fawn-colored suede wind-breaker, and bloomers beneath her heaviest knickers. The leather cap she pulled down to her ears, caught up her leather fur-lined gloves, and then her dark-colored slicker enveloped all.

"If they see me, they'll think I'm a man," she said sturdily to her stout reflection in the glass, "with this cap, this slicker, these boots."

Schooled by the experience of six months on the island, Gay slipped a flashlight into one pocket, and her pistol in the other. She was trembling all over.

"But I'm not afraid," she said firmly. She pressed the last electric button, and the cottage merged into the darkness that covered all the coast. She opened the door gingerly an inch at a time, listening intently. The island was asleep in the darkness. There was no moon; the stars, remote and cold, were pin-points of ice.

She did not hesitate. She quite confidently believed that she would rather die than endure the suspense of uncertainty. Not daring to use her flash, she made her way through the snow slowly, from tree to tree, toward the Little club, stumbling often, running into unsuspected pines, falling over hidden shrubs. But she went on. When she came at last to the row of trees that circled the clubhouse, she stood for a long moment, as Rand had taught her, flattened against the bark, listening.

Neither sound nor sigh from within. "Sealed," she thought, "hermetically sealed."

She crept cautiously around the corner, feeling her way inch by inch until she reached the spot where Rand had taken out the rocks to get under the piazza. It had seemed simple enough as she had watched him, and Gay felt she could easily do the same thing, and thus obtain a view of the interior, perhaps confirmation, or denial, of her fears. But for all the strength of her young arms, for all the power of her stubborn will, she could not so much as stir the smallest of the rocks, which were now deeply wedged into the frozen soil, packed solidly, presenting a firm and immovable barricade to entrance under the piazza.

Thus balked, she stopped a moment to consider. One thing was absolute, she would not go home. But she was puzzled as to wise procedure.

Tempted for a moment to fire her pistol into the air, hoping that fear of a raid would draw the gang from the shelter of the clubhouse, second thought convinced her it would be sheer foolhardiness. At last she decided to go down into the cove, to examine the great door and look for a light beneath the window curtains.

Getting into the cove itself was very difficult, for the crevices among the rocks were covered with snow, and she was obliged to claw her way along, hand over hand, sounding with her feet for standing ground. Down, down, she slid, from rock to rock, from snowy crevice into snowy crevice, kicking, holding on with both hands like grim death, down, lower and lower, until she attained the level beach of the cove. She moved warily now, feeling the great helplessness of her position. In the woods she could at least run for cover. Here in the cove she was at the mercy of whoever might come upon her. Softly, keeping in the shadow of the rocky cliffs, she crept to the clubhouse door.

She ran her hand over the locks carefully, and then softly turned the knob. Well oiled, silently it moved beneath her hand. The door to the Little club was open.

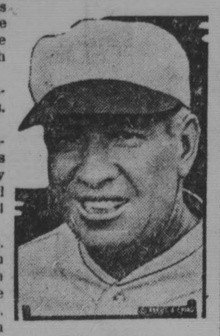
Speaker to Replace Ty Cobb

TRIS SPEAKER has landed with the Philadelphia Athletics. The veteran outfielder came to terms with Connie Mack, and as a result has gone into training with the Athletics at their quarters at Fort Meyers. The addition of Speaker to the Philadelphia roster gives Mack a veteran outfielder with Tris at center, Al Simmons at left and Bing Miller in the right corner.

Speaker commented on his stay with the Washingtons as a most pleasant relationship and referred to Bucky Harris as one of the greatest managers in baseball. As to his new affiliations the "Gray Eagle" said the Athletics had fine prospects, and that he looked forward to playing under Mack with great satisfaction.



Tris Speaker.

Asked what he thought of the approaching pennant scramble and the Yankees, Tris replied:

"Of course the Yankees are a great machine, but the Athletics and other members of the circuit are bound to furnish plenty of opposition. The Athletics were second last year, and like the other clubs they will be out for the championship."

Speaker was born in Hubbard City, near Dallas, Texas, August 24, 1883. From the Houston club he went to the Boston Red Sox in 1907 for his first major league assignment. The Sox paid $400 for him, and in 1908 sent him to Little Rock, then repurchased him in the same year for $500. By 1909 he was a regular. After the 1915 season he was traded to the Cleveland Indians for Thomas and Jones and a cash consideration of $55,000. In the middle of the 1919 campaign he was made manager of the Indians, succeeding Lee Fohl. It was Speaker's first experience as a player-manager and for the first and only time in his career as a regular player for about twenty years his batting average slumped below the .300 mark. His average for 1919 was .296.

In 1920, Speaker made a big comeback and enjoyed one of his best seasons, batting .388 in the dash of the Cleveland club to an American league pennant and a world's championship after a series with the Brooklyn Robins. Tris exceeded his 1920 average with the Indians in 1925, with a mark of .389.

After the 1926 campaign, Speaker resigned from the Indians and joined the Washingtons, with whom he played in 142 games for a batting average of .327. Speaker has played in three world series, two as a member of the Red Sox in 1912 and 1915, and the other with the Indians.

EAST FAILS TO GET GOLF GAMES

Chicago Is Allotted Many Interesting Tournaments.

It has been many a long year since the eastern section of the United States was awarded so few big golf tournaments. And practically all of the tournaments have been awarded.

The amateur goes to Brae Burn, near Boston; the open is to be played at Olympia fields, near Chicago; the international matches for the Walker cup will be played at Wheaton. The solons have sent the women's national into the sticks—to Hot Springs—and there's no chance of getting the P. G. A.

All of which leaves the metropolitan district, the largest section in the United States, with no prominent tournaments except its own local events, the Metropolitan Amateur and open. This condition presages a rather dull tournament season in these parts, but, if it does nothing else, it means a lot of action around Boston and Chicago.

It is doubtful if any section ever had as many interesting events as falls to the lot of Chicago this summer. The Open, the Walker Cup, the Western Open, Western Amateur, Western Women's and a flock of other events—that is unprecedented. It seems as if a determined attempt is being made to satiate Chicago golfers. Or else the solons aim to stimulate interest to fever pitch. It is doubtful which of the two is correct. Nevertheless, the Chicago district is to be rich in tournaments.

Thus far the only event on the horizon in the East is the New York State Amateur, an interesting affair, but by no means a major event. The public links championship is to be played on the famous Cobble Creek layout, near Philadelphia, but that still is not in the metropolitan district.

From 1895, when the first official amateur championship was held at Newport, until 1906 some 36 events were played and all but nine were held in the East, around New York, Philadelphia or Boston. However, since 1906 there has been a change of venue. The West, principally Chicago, has held just as many tourneys of national importance as the metropolitan district.

Jockey in Limelight

Riding with the reckless abandon of his forefathers, an Indian jockey has crashed into the limelight of the Tia Juana racetrack. He is Jockey J. Frye, a full-blooded Klamath Indian who lives in Myrtle Point, Ore. The other day Jockey Frye, riding his first winner, piloted the two-year-old Valucia to its "maiden" victory.

Nemo Leibold Only New A. A. Manager

With one exception, all of the A. A. teams will face the barrier in April with the same leadership as in 1927. The change is at Columbus, where no season is complete without from one to three pilots—Nemo Leibold, succeeding Ivy Wingo.

The others are lined up this way: Jack Lellvelt, Milwaukee; Nick Allen, St. Paul; Mike Kelley, Minneapolis; Dutch Zwilling, Kansas City; Casey Stengel, Toledo; Bill Meyer, Louisville; Bruno Betzel, Indianapolis.

Jack Delaney to Train by Continued Fighting

Jack Delaney is going to do his training in the heavyweight campaign against active opponents in the roped arena, Joe Jacobs, his manager, declared.

"Delaney figures he can keep in better condition by taking on one opponent a week than if he settled down in any training camp," Jacobs said. "Jack is willing to battle on the basis of a fight a week."

Numerous opponents are in prospect for the Bridgeporter, including the rugged Jack Renault, who may be secured for a bout at St. Louis.

Steel Workers Try

First Joie Ray, and now another Gary steel mill worker, hopes to win a berth on America's 1928 Olympic team. He is Richard Sturtridge, former DePauw track star.

Sturtridge, a figure in the decathlon at three successive Penn and Illinois relays, has been working in the steel mills since he graduated last spring.

He plans to go into intensive training under the direction of Coach Farrell.

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

See Ghostly Faces

Birmingham, Ala.—Seemingly from the world of spirits an unseen hand has impressed the pictures of two faces upon panes of glass in windows at the Pickens county courthouse at Carrollton, Ala.

Such men as Probate Judge B. G. Robinson, Sheriff Lester May, Rev. W. A. McCain, pastor of the Baptist church, and other well-known citizens of Carrollton, vouch for these pictures. They have been viewed by several hundred citizens of Pickens county. One face, they say, has been visible on one of the windows ever since the courthouse was built in 1876. Recently a second picture appeared on a new pane of glass inserted in an attic window by J. E. Oglesby, carpenter, to replace a pane broken by a storm.

The old face is said to resemble Sam Burhalter, a negro, who was killed many years ago while trying to evade arrest for burning the old Pickens county courthouse. This face is full of troubles and crossed with pain.

The new face resembles that of Lee Summerville, a negro who killed Deputy Sheriff Burt Johnson in November, 1926. He was shot to death recently by a Sumter county deputy sheriff, at York, Ala. The face may be seen distinctly at a distance of two blocks.

Neither picture indicates whether the faces are white or black. They are just merely studies of expression.

Soon after the second face appeared, the glass was removed from the window, washed with acid and replaced. At a close view of the two panes of glass nothing can be seen.

"These pictures are not an hallucination," said Judge Robinson. "Any one who cares to do so may see them at any time, just as many hundreds of people have seen them in the past." He says the images move from place to place on the glass when the sky is cloudy.

Police of England Blame Yank Crooks

London.—Scotland Yard's latest baffling problem concerns an epidemic of big store robberies. An American gang is suspected.

During recent months five of the leading establishments in the West end of London have been raided by expert cracksmen. It is estimated that $120,000 worth of jewelry and other goods have fallen into their hands.

Police officials believe it is the work of one gang and are inclined to lay it at the door of an American master mind by reason of the expert and modern methods employed.

Another reason for their belief is the warning they received last year from police officials in the United States that a flock of American supercriminals were likely to invade Europe and that their pet hobby was expensive jewelry.

Scotland Yard's conviction became almost a certainty when a fashionable jewelry store in Bond street, the heart of aristocratic London, was raided recently and $50,000 worth of gems extracted from a supposedly burglar proof safe, despite the fact that the safe was in full view of the policemen patrolling the beat.

The most modern appliances were used. Acetylene blowpipes were first brought into play to prepare the safe for the steel cutters. Previously a hole had been made in the ceiling above to enable the thieves to lower themselves and their apparatus preparatory to operations.

Water was strewn on the floor to prevent an outbreak of fire from the heat of the blowpipes. The job was done in a few hours. The cracksmen made use of the electric light burning above the safe for illumination purposes. Not a clew was left. The policeman who occasionally glanced in to see if everything was in order was innocent of what was happening.

In three of the cases of big store robberies the thieves mingled with the customers during Saturday and then prior to the closing hour hid themselves in some convenient spot. They robbed the store at leisure during Sunday and escaped before business began Monday.

Acrobatics, eclipsing the feats of the renowned "cat" burglars, played a prominent part in the latest store robbery. Finding the floor on which they had hidden inclosed by locked doors and powerful steel shutters, the thieves knotted hose pipes and hung them down the parcels chute.

They then slid one by one down the dark spiral passage, ransacking floor by floor. For their escape to the street they utilized the same knotted hose pipes. Burglar alarms availed nothing.

Police officials declare these cracksmen set a new standard in burglary without noise or violence. They paid tribute to the manner in which the burglars swung themselves inside the building by means of the hose pipes.

The Week-Ender

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

I VISITED a college a year or so ago situated within an hour's ride of a big city. Few of the students live outside of the state in which the institution is situated and most of them live within a radius of forty miles. There are no classes on Saturday, and Sunday, of course, is a holiday. When the last class exercise on Friday is ended, the campus is all but deserted. There is a mad rush for trolley cars, and motor busses and broken-down flivvers and suburban trains, and the pseudo student is off for a week-end at home.

The student likes to go home, because the duties and opportunities which home affords frees him from any college or scholastic duties. He may take a book or two home, but he seldom looks into them or it. He is better fed at home, he can sleep later in the morning—mother sees to that—he has a better time. Parents are gratified to have him at home. He is safer, they think, better looked after, and the weekly visit keeps him from immediate weaning from the home influences, and keeps alive the sentiment for the home girl.

There is no spirit in a college of this sort, however. The students of such an institution are not going to college in reality; they are picking up a few stray crumbs of information while still living at home. They come back to their work Monday morning weary, bored with the thought that they will have to hit the books again. By the time they get settled down to work another week-end has arrived and it is time to go home There is little organization in such an institution, little class feeling, fraternities are mere boarding houses, college activities arouse no interest, and there is little or no reading, or thoughtful discussion excepting what is absolutely necessary to meet class requirements.

No man, not even a college student, can desert his business to go off on a pleasure jaunt every week-end and have it amount to much. He must give it some serious thought and attention even when he is away from it if he is to get on. The week-ender is a poor business man and an indifferent student.

"But one should drop the worries of business when he closes his office doors at night," you say. There is a good deal of truth in such a statement, but there are always incidental things to be done, unexpected occurrences which must be attended to and one must be at hand to do this—not fifty or a hundred or a thousand miles away. One must associate with business men and learn business ways, and get into the spirit of what he is doing, and this is true in college quite as much as in any other business. There are long vacations at Thanksgiving and Christmas and Easter and during the summer when complete freedom from academic obligations may be enjoyed, and these are quite adequate. The student who wants to go home every week-end and the parents who encourage him to do so are to that extent weakening his college interest.

SMARTNESS IN PRINT

The vogue for printed fabrics for next season's spring and summer frocks has included varied striped materials. Stripes horizontal, diagonal, vertical and almost every other kind will be used in fashioning or trimming some of the new sports frocks.

For the slender person who can afford to wear horizontal stripes, the frock shown above is very fetching and youthful. The skirt is of black satin, plaited all around and the striped blouse is of red and white. Note the smart little collar, cuffs and pocket ornaments fashioned of white grosgrain ribbon edged with the red.

Triumph of Science

Washington.—An event of great interest to the scientific world occurred here when the largest piece of optical glass ever cast in the United States was uncovered at the bureau of standards and found to be flawless. The great disk, 70 inches in diameter, 11 inches thick and weighing 3,500 pounds was cast in May, 1927, and has been cooling for nine months.

The glass is destined for the Perkins observatory at Ohio Wesleyan university, Delaware, Ohio, for use as a concave mirror in a new reflecting telescope. An entirely new process, devised by A. N. Finn, a scientist, was used. Four unsuccessful attempts to cast the piece were previously made.

A thousand pounds of special broken glass, 4,600 pounds of sand and chemicals were poured into a single pot in a gas-fired furnace at the bureau on May 7. The molten mass was stirred by hand for six hours and run into a special electrically controlled mold at a temperature of 2,400 degrees Fahrenheit. Throughout months the temperature has been gradually lowered, over periods as slowly as 4½ degrees per day.

Japan Will Protect Buyers of All Gems

Tokyo.—Dishonest pearl dealers and jewelers in Japan are to be put out of business if the government can accomplish it.

The department of commerce, at the request of legitimate dealers, intends to stamp all genuine jewels with the words "guaranteed by the government." Jewel inspectors will be attached to the department and every gem examined and attested will be properly stamped.

Numerous foreigners touring in Japan have been the victims of unscrupulous jewelers, paying exorbitant prices for imitation pearls. Probably no other people are as adept at "faking" gems as the Japanese.

The imitation gem dealers are located principally in Tokyo, Yokohama, Osaka and Kobe. Government inspection offices are to be located in each of these cities, beginning in April. Thereafter foreign buyers may assure themselves of some measure of protection by watching for the government stamp.

Egyptians Good Dentists

The science of dentistry was far advanced in the age of the ancient Egyptians. Mummies have been found with gold fillings in their teeth, crowns and even bridgework. The art, however, was lost later and unknown until comparatively recent years. The first American school of dentistry had its beginning in Baltimore in 1839.

Demonstrations of the new metalization process were given by W. L. Einstein, said to be related to Professor Einstein, of relativity fame. They were attended by many scientists, who saw suitings and other materials treated, which, it was claimed, would last a lifetime.

Tamarac, Minn.—Harold Anderson of Tamarac claims the record for continuous plowing. He remained at the throttle of his tractor for 110 hours without sleep, and left the machine only long enough to eat and fill the fuel tanks of the machine.

The youth left his home with the tractor and two bottom plows at seven o'clock on a Monday morning and plowed continuously until nine o'clock the following Friday night. Farmers in the neighborhood timed the operations.

In the 110 hours he plowed 60 acres with the tractor running at slightly under normal operating speed and covering a distance of about 240 miles. Anderson lost eight pounds during the five days.

To Make Sun Work

Stove Pipe Wells, Calif.—Death valley may be made to give up a far vaster treasure than ever has been dug from its blistering hills. It is about to be made to pay the piper.

H. W. Eichbaum, desert lover and believer in nature, is making plans to entertain a group of scientists who will make some tests to ascertain the best methods of imprisoning the energy developed by the sun in Death valley.

An effort is being made by Eichbaum to bring to Stove Pipe Wells, here in the heart of the valley, Prof. Daniel F. Comstock, formerly of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, now a consulting engineer, who has developed ideas as regards to the controlling of solar energy. He is expected to overcome the difficulties the problem presents.

The solar constant, says Eichbaum, corresponds to one horse power per square yard, or 3,000,000 horse power to the square mile. Here in Death valley it is believed there are greater opportunities for the testing out of this new process of developing power from the sun's rays than anywhere else in the world, save, perhaps, on the Sahara desert.

Married at San Anselmo

Menlo Park's prepossessing and talented city attorney George K. Whitworth on February 22 quietly repaired to San Anselmo and was united in marriage to Miss Helen Louise Wasson, the petite and charming daughter of W. D. Wasson of Palo Alto. The young barrister supposed he was stealing a march on the city council and other officials of the city but in this he reckoned wrongly for they knew of his intention all the time.

At a meeting of the city council Tuesday night he was warmly congratulated by the councilmen and others. During his brief period as city attorney, Whitworth has displayed splendid ability and judgment as a lawyer, showing a wonderful grasp of municipal procedure. He is a graduate of the state university and is associated with Judge Charles A. Shurtleff in the practice of law. His friends predict a successful career for him in San Mateo county. Mr. Whitworth is a cousin of Judge J. M. York, a member of the State Appel late court.

The pretty bride was educated in Palo Alto and at an exclusive school for young ladies in San Francisco and is a very charming and accomplished young woman. The young couple have a cosy home on Hermosa Way, Santa Cruz avenue, into which they will move shortly to egin life's journey surrounded by all the blessings and hapiness vouchsafed a marrier career.

Council Meeting

The city council met Tuesday evening, all members being present except Mayor A. E. Blake. Much routine business was transacted by the council.

The financial report showed that the collections to be $873.30, balance on hand $642.38, total, $1,515.68; disbursements $541-.11 aleving a balance in the treasury of $974.57.

E. J. Stribling in a communication complained of a nuisance near her home on the highway and said complaint was referred to the health and safety commission.

Harcom of the street commission said he would take it upon himself to put a street sign on Encinal avenue and would make a report later upon other street signs later. He stated that the avenue was in need of repair and that the Felton Gables Company, owning property on there, agreed to do the improvement, providing that it would be reimbursed when the council had sufficient money to do so. The matter was left in the hands of the commissioner to ascertain the cost of such repairs.

The removal of garbage came and caused quite a discussion. V. Arata, who has the Redwood City contra t, apeared before the board and agreed to do the work, but failed to fix a minimum price. Arata has been doing the hauling for some time, giving satisfaction. This caused Brown to demand his appointment as the official garbage contractor. After much discussion the matter was finally submitted to the council as a whole to thrash out the matter during the week and report at the next meeting. The applicants on file are H. L. Williams, V. Arata, M. Covolo and M. Barba.

A delegation was present from Menlo Oaks, Mr. Diebles speaking for it. He said the people of Menlo Oaks were anxious to secure some protection approach of small dwellings and wanted the favored locality to be strictly residential a section. He thought annexation would be the remedy. Harcom in a brief speech welcomed the delegation saying that the council would be pleased to take up the question of annexation. It was ageed that the council as a whole would meet next Saturday evening in the Peninsula school in Menlo Oaks, there to meet the people of that district to discuss the matter. The legal aspect of the question was given by the city attorney.

The following claims were allowed and passed:

Salary 247.75; Menlo Park Recorder, $132; F. J. Furnivall, $5.25; Telephone Co. $7; State Compensation Fund $54.12; P. G. & E. $3.75; Quackenbush Furniture Co. $58.25; Irvin and Jochens $21.50.

The board adjourned to Tuesday evening, March 13.
